Lewisham Archives Catalogue

Church of England Records

This catalogue was created by the Local History and Archives Centre [LHAC] staff and is a catalogue of the Archives material held at the Local History and Archives Centre. It is an incomplete list of the catalogue, which is being added to constantly, this document will change as new material is created, so please check back to see new additions. For additional listing about 25% more of the catalogue [which will be added to this document in the future] see the A2A website at www.A2A.org.uk. To search the catalogue use the search function in the PDF viewer.

Please note this list is of archival material, and access to this material is different from Local History Library material. This is because the items are unique and need to be preserved. If you require access to this material please contact the LHAC and arrange an appointment, quoting the reference numbers of the items you require. We cannot produce whole collections or large amounts of material without prior appointment. Only a member of the Archives staff can produce archives; please check the availability of this material and that a member of Archives staff is available before visiting. On some late nights, staff breaks, lunchtimes and Saturday it may not be possible to produce archival material because no Archives staff are available, so contact LHAC before visiting.

Unfit for Production

If an item is marked 'Unfit for Production' this means it is fragile or damaged and it cannot be produced. But LHAC staff may be able to access the document and extract the information, or a copy of the document may exist. Please contact LHAC and see how we can help you access the material. This may not be possible if the material is very badly damaged and no copy exists.

Restricted access

Some collections are marked 'restricted access; contact the LHAC'. These are collections that are not fully listed. We will try and provide access, but extra security measures will apply and they may require time to prepare. Time is needed to assess and make the material available and a member of Archives staff will advise you as to time this will take. Large collections may be too large to produce but a member of staff may be able to check the material for you and provide information. These listed items are to help you find useful information and are prioritised for full cataloguing by LHAC staff but this is an ongoing process.

These items cannot be produced without prior appointment and require notice for staff to check the material. Contact the LHAC before visiting.

Please Note:

For Access to Archival material contact the LHAC BEFORE visiting.

Church History

The church was founded at Bellingham Mission Hall in Brookhouse Road, which was built in 1924/5 Architect: Sir Charles Nicholson (1867 – 1949) Listing: not listed. Consecrated: 1939

The London County Council made sites available for churches on the estate, and the Church of England raised the money to build St. Dunstan's (though there was never enough to build the planned eastern section). The church was never completed as originally planned and only the nave and aisles were finished. The east end is terminated with a temporary brick wall and corrugated iron sheeting at the gable end and below the aisle roofs. The church is built in the Gothic style. There is a large, sweeping, tiled roof covering the nave and aisles with no clerestory. There is a bell turret at the north west corner of the building. The church is built in multi-coloured red/brown facing bricks with stone window dressings, tracery and copings. The roof is covered in slates and the bell turret roof is covered in lead. 21 November 2005 saw the 80th anniversary of the opening of the church by the Bishop of Southwark, which was celebrated with a party on 18 November. A new church and community hall was built in 2006.

Church History

Built: 1857-67 Architect: Benjamin Ferrey Listing:
grade 2

All Saints was built as the new parish church for the village of Blackheath in 1857-67 and the parish was created in 1859 from Lewisham St Mary. It stands on its own on the edge of the Heath and makes no attempt to relate to nearby buildings. It has Kentish rag surfaces and a spire on the southwest corner. In 1890 the Vestries and 1899 the porch were added by A W Blomfield.

Church History

Listing: grade B

The Church of the Ascension, Dartmouth Road, previously Dartmouth Chapel, had its origins initially in Blackheath's manorial history. The Chapel founded in 1695 and was built as a chapel of ease in 1697 and established in 1699 by Susannah Graham, aunt of William Legge (later Earl of Dartmouth and Lord of the Manor of Lewisham), so that the Vicar of Lewisham could preach a sermon each Sunday. The church was rebuilt in 1750 and the rest of the church was rebuilt in 1834 by Lord Dartmouth and 1838. Only the apse remains with a short bay to the west of it. The parish was created in 1883 from Lewisham St Mary. The church was restored after the Second World War [1940] with the north and south galleries being removed and the west gallery cut back.

Church History

Church built 1866-70, Consecrated: 1870
Built: 1866 – 70 Architect: Francis Marrable

Listing: grade C

St Peter's Church was built in 1866-70 in Brockley, and the parish created 1871 from Deptford St John. It is described by Pevsner as "a well-preserved suburb", to designs by Frederick Marrable (1818-72). The west end was altered and the tower provided with another storey by A W Blomfield in 1891. The later work enhances what was already an impressive design, combining the talents of designer and craftsman to good effect. The nave is unusually wide for its date.

The church comprises a nave with narrow side aisles, chancel, north and south transepts, vestries, two-storey narthex which encloses the west gallery, and tower which is sited on the centre at the west end. Access to the gallery is via two stairs at the extreme northwest and southwest corners. The north transept accommodates a chapel. The organ console and pipes are sited within recesses each side of the chancel. The interior was reordered in 2006, with new seating and lighting, and solar powered water heating.

Introduction

The mission hall in of St Cyprian in Brockley Road was built in 1881-2; as a mission from St Mary's, Lewisham. The parish was constituted and the church in Adelaide Road (now Adelaide Avenue) built in 1900/1. The church was bombed in 1940 and has been demolished. The services were held in mission hall until 1960 when the parish was united with that of St Hilda, Crofton Park.

Church hall, Brockley Road

Built circa 1850 as St Cyprian's church (Anglican) but later sold to the Roman Catholics for use as a church hall.

Church History

Church built 1900, succeeding 1881 mission; destroyed 1940; parish created 1901 from Lewisham St Mary.
Architect: Sir A W Blomfield & Sons.

Church History

1st church built in 1887, 2nd church built in 1893.

Description

The church was built in 1893, the foundation stone being laid on 8th June, the architect being Mr Gillbert Scott and Balham Brothers being the builders. The building is simply sited between houses in a terrace. The site is extremely minimal and backs on to a railway cutting.

The main church is built in red facing bricks, the vestry additions are in London stocks. The structure is load-bearing brickwork with an open trussed timber roof, slate clad. The plan is very simple - a nave and a chancel with a very shallow sanctuary.

The church ceased to be used for worship in 2003 and has been sold. The building is within the parish of Hatcham, St James

Church History

Church built 1900, parish created 1900 from Lewisham, St Saviour Brockley Rise, St George Perry Hill.

Built: 1907

Architect: Greenaway & Newberry

Listing: grade C

The church was constructed in about 1907 and, although it suffered minor damage during the Second World War, is substantially in its original form. The original form of construction of the church had a central small spire and ten corner windows to the original Nave before the construction of the aisles and tower. Accommodation comprises nave with north and south aisles, sanctuary and chancel, vestry and porches, with a tower rising at the south east corner. There is also a crypt which houses a chapel. The church hall is to the rear.

The parish of St Hilda, Crofton Park was constituted in October 1900, though services had been taking place in a temporary building since the previous May. The site for the church (on the corner of Brockley Road and Courtrai Road) had been purchased in 1898 and a mission hall built on the site in 1900. The permanent church was consecrated in June 1908. The parish was united with that of St Cyprian (q.v.) in 1960.

consecrated in June 1908. The parish was united with that of St Cyprian (q.v.) in 1960.

Church History

The parish was formed from that of Christ Church, Forest Hill in an Iron church, which was built in 1865.

The old church was demolished during 1999 due to severe structural problems. A new church has been built on the same site. The church was demolished during 1999 due to severe structural problems. A new church was built on the same site 2003/4; The parish was created in 1880 from Lewisham St Mary & Forest Hill Christchurch.

Original Church Built: 1878 – 80

Architect: W C Banks

Listing: grade 2

The church was situated on a peninsula site at the corner of Vancouver Road and Woolstone Road. It was designed by William Coppard Banks and was consecrated in 1880. The church was built in an embellished 14th Century English Gothic style. The church featured a north east tower (heightened in 1887), polygonal chancel, apsidal western baptistery and elaborate western rose window with stained glass by Henry Holidia (now in store). The accommodation comprised nave, north and south aisles, western baptistery, north west and south west porches, chancel, organ chamber, choir vestry, clergy vestry, toilet and tower rooms. The exterior walls were constructed in Kentish ragstone with Bath stone dressings. The main roofs were pitched and covered in blue/grey Welsh slate.

Subsidence has caused severe damage to the fabric, and the church was demolished in 1999. Although a large archive has been deposited, there has not yet been time to list the remainder and only those records listed below are on open access, for access to the remainder please contact the LHAC.

A new Church was built:2003 – 04 by architect: Thomas Ford & Partners The building is not listed

(see A short historical note on the parish and church of St George, Perry Hill,

Church History

The church began in St Mary's Mission Room, which was over a wheelwright's shop in Rushey Green in 1882. Holbeach Hall was built in 1883 and sold to Lewisham Baptist Church in 1954. The parish created 1888 from Lewisham St Mary. The church was planned to accommodate over 1000 people at a time when the population of Catford was little than 5000. In the 1880s the bulk of the new inhabitants of Catford were lower middle and artisan class and it was for them that the church was primarily established. Church built 1886-7 and was consecrated in November 1887. It was built of Bracknell brick and Corsham stone in a style described by the architect, H. Roumieu Gough, as Early English, with a squat square tower topped by a slated pyramid. It was demolished in 1966 to make way for the eventual town hall extension and a new St. Laurence Church was built in Bromley Road in 1968.

New Church

Built: 1967 – 68 Architect: Ralph Covell Listing: not listed

The church was built in 1967/8 and is linked to a large community centre. Access to both parts of the buildings is from the Bromley Road, and there is extensive car parking at the rear of the site.

The church buildings themselves comprise an octagonal church (with a splendid range of vestries and other ancillary rooms) and a pentagonal Lady Chapel. A main feature of both structures is an exposed reinforced concrete frame, which over the church is carried up to form a corona, and over the chapel, a spirelet with a single bell. The main wall below roof level is in facing bricks with grey flint bricks as the general interior finish to the church and chapel.

Church History

A Mission Hall was built in 1900.

Built: 1903, - 04

Architect: Philip A Robson Listing: grade C The church, consecrated in October 1904, forms part of the South Germans Estate built by Cameron Corbett as part of the development of South London. The architect thought that the atmospheric conditions prevailing at the time meant that much external ornamentation was a waste, so he gave it a certain reticent dignity and reserved his best decoration for the interior. The style is, according to the architect, 'an adaptation of fourteenth century English Gothic', known as 'decorated', but the symbolism attached to this style has been treated in a manner more suited to the period of its construction.

Church History

1st church built in Saxon times; 2nd church built in the 12th century; 3rd church built 1697.

Built: 1697/1714
Architect: C Stanton

Listing: grade 2*

There has been a church on this site since the period of the Norman conquest and parts of the present church date from the 14th century. Although 1697 saw some rebuilding, the work was apparently badly executed, for in 1714 much had to be redone. The church was repaired 1876 and 1911, when it closed and services were held in the Albany Institute, Creek Road. The church reopened in 1914. The church was badly damaged [almost destroyed in October 1940, when incendiary bombs fell on the church; [services were held at the church hall, Church Street, Deptford until it was restored in 1958]. The beautiful interior of St Nicholas' as it is today is the result of the ingenuity and inspiration of Mr Alan Ford and the artistic gifts of the Revd Kenneth Francis, who was vicar during the period of restoration in 1958.

Woodcarving by Grinling Gibbons can be seen in the reredos and chancel decoration.

Church History

St Paul's Church, 1835

Deptford was an unusually large parish with its nucleus around the ancient St Nicholas' Church near the river. Acknowledging its growth south; its prosperity, status; and taking advantage of state support for the building of new churches in London, a new parish church, St Paul's, opened in 1723. It was designed by Thomas Archer and is one of the most striking buildings for many miles. Its extensive churchyard ensured fine views from all sides. Church built and parish created 1730 from St Nicholas. The Rector's house is to the right, partially obscured by trees. Built: 1712 – 30
Architect: Thomas Archer Listing: grade A

St Paul's Church, one of the 50 Commissioners' Churches, was designed by Thomas Archer (c.1668-1743), a Commissioner himself, and was constructed between the years 1712-1730 when it was consecrated. The triangular Rectory, also by Archer was demolished c.1885. The church was described by Basil Clarke as follows: "It is a most imposing church, and is made more so by the stone platform on which it stands. It is almost square though it is, in fact, planned as a nave and aisles. At the four corners are the usual vestibules and vestries, two-storied, with canted walls within the church. The two sides have slight projections of three bays, with pediments; the walls are adorned by pilasters with intermittent rustications. The tower is circular, with windows, like those of the towers of St John's, Smith Square, and a spire: the basement is surrounded by a semi-circular portico. At the east is an apse, with a Venetian window which follows the curve. The order inside is Corinthian. The ceiling has admirable plaster work. There were Victorian repairs in 1856 (John Whichcord) and 1883 (Thomas Dinwiddy), and a sympathetic restoration in the 1930s by Eden and Marchant. The Victorian Norman font came from Rochester Cathedral: the original font was sent to a mission church abroad." The brick vaulted basement was refurbished and provided with improved sanitation and a new kitchen in 1993.

Baptisms 1730-1958; marriages 1730-1966; burials 1730-1788

The following items were received from the church.

Introduction

NB The churchyard was closed on 1 October 1854 but reopened temporarily in June 1856. It finally closed (except for a few burials in existing vaults) in 1858 when the Deptford (Brockley) cemetery opened. Burials 1854-6 appear to have taken place in Nunhead cemetery.

The other parish registers are at London Metropolitan Archives. Microfilm of these to 1949 is held at Lewisham Local Studies and Archives

Church History

Deptford New Town was made part of a new parish of St John's in 1855. That church's spire dominates Lewisham Way in this view and overshadows the school, which opened the same year, can be seen in the background. Church built & parish created 1855 from Deptford St Paul. The church and the parish were the result of the combined efforts of John Seymour Spencer Lucas, the freeholder of the area, and Canon C F S Money, the parish's first vicar. The school was immediately successful, but wilted under the challenge of the London School Board's Tanners Hill School, which opened in 1879. The school was at the corner of Albyn Road (then Albyn Street), St John's Road and Admiral Street. The parish conceded in 1911 when St John's School passed to the London County Council. It was demolished and rebuilt as Ravensbourne School. It is now St Stephen's Primary School. Built: 1855 Architect: P C Hardwick

Listing: grade 2 The church has a central nave with side aisles to north and south, all of which are terminated by gables. The west end of the south aisle is terminated by the tower and broach spire beneath which is the main entrance. A small attached turret is set in the angle between the tower and nave. The church is constructed in squared randomly coursed Kentish ragstone with ashlar quoins, string courses, copings, window tracery and surrounds, buttress tables, etc., and for the spire.

Church History

Founded in Penny Bundle Lane in 1866 and was meeting in the Bethel Blackhorse Bridge in 1867.

Church built 1870-2; parish created 1873 from Deptford St Paul

Built: 1870 – 72

Architect: T H Watson

Listing: not listed

St Luke's Church was constructed in 1870-2 to a design by T H Watson. The interior was remodelled by Maguire and Murray to form a smaller church with ancillary hall and first floor offices for a community organisation. The church is an imposing presence on Evelyn Street, the east elevation being articulated by a substantial tower fronted by a distinctive circular apse with five stained glass windows and articulated below these with blind arches at ground level. There are ancillary rooms to north and south of the tower, those to the north having been altered in 1927 by the addition of a new porch, the flying buttress providing some support to the tower probably having been added at the same time. There is a turret to the tower giving access to the upper stages by means of a timber and slate spiral staircase; the turret is topped by a conical stone roof. To the west side of the tower is a large, slated dual-pitched roof originally covering the whole of the nave. This roof has some dormers to it. The aisles to north and south are likewise dual pitched. To the rear of the church, in the north west and south west corners, are two smaller porches/stores, again with sloping slated roofs. The interior of the building has been divided up by plasterboard partitions and timber floors to provide a smaller worship area under the tower, the nave and aisles now being set aside for hall and community use. There is a first floor office, being used by a community group, accessible from a door on the south side.

Church History

Mission Hall Built 1930

Built: 1928 Architect: Sir Charles Nicholson Listing: not listed

St Luke's Church is said to have been built in 1928. It is of very solid brick construction but was damaged in the Second World War [1941], services were held at the Mission Hall until the church was repaired. Church was rededicated in 1950.

The church consists of a wide nave and an almost equally wide parallel aisle roofed over by twin gabled roofs with a valley gutter between. Entrance is from two sides of a low ceiling lean to "porch" from which two pointed arches lead into the nave and one into the aisle. The nave and aisle are separated by a row of pointed arches. Both have partly exposed roof trusses and curved ceilings finished with a sheet material in panels, probably plywood. The nave and the aisle are approximately 8m high. Windows are mostly set in groups at high level separated by brick piers. They are glazed with leaded lights and clear glass.

The choir stalls are original, low and painted white. The font is solidly constructed and easily accessible. There is a well-maintained organ. Almost every chair is provided with an individually embroidered kneeler. Decorations are light cheerful and warm.

Church History

Church/Hall was built in 1926 and the main church was built: 1928 – 29
Architects: Sir Charles Nicholson Listing: not listed. The church was built as a traditional basilica in plain Early Christian Style. The plan is almost completely symmetrical with a central double height nave, which has a shallow double pitch roof, flanked by two flat roofed single height aisles. At the west front of the church there is a double height narthex with transepts either side of the main entrance. These also have shallow double-pitched roofs at right angles to the main aisle roof but at a lower level and terminate in gable ends. The external appearance of the Church is very simple with a mottled red brown brick being used throughout, in conjunction with red brick and tile dressings to windows and doors. A red brick cornice runs at high level down both of the aisle walls. The aisles do not run the full length of the building but return back into the nave towards the east end of the church. The front elevation of the church features an attractive red brick semi-circular arched portico with a circular window above also lined in moulded red brick. The pitched roofs of the church are covered in traditional Roman red pantiles. A small brick built bellcote projects above the main aisle roof on the right hand side of the front elevation. The doors to the church are in plain oak with vertical tongued and grooved boarding and wrought iron strap hinges.

The interior of the Church echoes the basilica like appearance of the exterior. The roof has exposed king post trusses with decorative painted boarding above. The nave is separated from the aisles by massive stone circular Romanesque style columns supporting equally massive plain rectangular beams running longitudinally. These have a deep projecting cornice above with deeply recessed segmental arched clerestory windows over. The aisle windows are similar but taller. The east end of the church has a large circular window at high level similar to that on the front elevation. The aisles are flat roofed with closely spaced rectangular beams exposed at ceiling level. With the exception of the columns, all interior masonry is plastered and painted white. The floor has quarry tiles to the central areas of the nave and aisles with wooden parquet between. The nave and high altar are on raised platforms. The area surrounding the high altar is floored in stone. A glazed screen in wood and metal separates the entrance lobby from the church. Above the entrance lobby there is a full width gallery that is open to the church. The gallery is approached by two similar stone staircases at opposite ends of the narthex.

Church History

The site was given by the Earl of Dartmouth, lord mayor of the manor, who wanted an imposing centre piece for his prestigious Dartmouth Park estate. Christ Church, the parish church of Forest Hill, was the exact contemporary of the new Crystal Palace, the foundation being laid in 1852 and the consecration held in 1854 even though the spire was not completed until 1885.

Ewan Christian was the architect.

The site was given by the Earl of Dartmouth, lord mayor of the manor, who wanted an imposing centre piece for his prestigious Dartmouth Park estate.

The estate was planned in the 1840s, but largely built in the 1850s. In 1851 there were no churches in Forest Hill, but by 1901 there were 15 or more.

Another paper, a pastoral letter headed "Bishop of London's Fund, For relieving the Spiritual Wants of the Metropolis and its Suburbs, dated 1864 was also contributed by Mrs Larkin. It is reproduced here. Church built 1852-4; parish created 1855 from Lewisham St Mary Christ Church, the parish church of Forest Hill, was the exact contemporary of the new Crystal Palace, the foundation being laid in 1852 and the consecration held in 1854 even though the spire was not completed until 1885. Ewan Christian was the architect. This leaflet, dated 1850, calls for subscriptions to the building fund. It consists of four pages, the back page blank. The second and third pages are reproduced below and can be enlarged.

The church was declared redundant in July 2003. It is due to be converted into residential accommodation with a small place of worship created in the chancel.

Built: 1852 – 85

Architect: Ewan Christian

Listing: grade 2

Christ Church, c. 1960

Christ Church dates from 1854, and was designed by Ewan Christian (1814-1895), a pupil of Matthew Habishon. Not all the church was built at once, the north aisle being completed in 1864, and the spire being added to the tower in 1885.

The church consists of a nave separated from aisles to north and south by octagonal columns; chancel with vestry space to the north and a chapel to the south; a west tower surmounted by the 56m high octagonal spire with small broaches and pinnacles on the four corners; and a south porch.

Alterations by Laurence King and Partners in 1972 created an upper room to the rear of the nave with small rooms under the aisle roofs to north and south, accessed by a staircase in the tower and provided with an external escape stair at the west end of the north aisle. There is a kitchen off the landing on the first floor, and on the ground floor toilets and stores were created in the tower space, and a new vestry and lounge space in the north and south aisles respectively. The low-ceilinged space under the new rooms to the rear of the nave forms a baptistery containing what is presumably the original font on a stone plinth.

The original chancel has been blocked off from the nave and is used as a store and workshop.

The space to the south of this is used as a Lady Chapel, and the original vestry space to the north is used as a store.

A door behind the staircase up to the first floor gives access to a spiral stair leading up to the first stage of the tower. The spiral stair is of interesting open tread stone construction, and is quite wide. There is also an external door to this stair. The belfry stage of the tower is accessed through a trap door by a long vertical wooden ladder attached to the northwest corner of the space. The belfry stage of the tower is very large, and is open to the spire above. There are trap doors in the centre of the floors of both first and belfry stages. The belfry stage has four large two-light bell louvre openings, originally each with three timber louvres.

Church History

Church built 1872-3; parish created 1874 from Christ Church Forest Hill.

Built: 1872 – 73

Architect: William Oakley

Listing: grade 2

The growth of new houses in the Honor Oak area led to a demand for a church, and St. Augustine's parish was formed. The architect appointed was William Oakley, a member of the Royal Institute of British Architects, who was to design, "a building which on account of the site and status of the neighbourhood, must of necessity possess some architectural pretensions".

The foundation stone was laid by Mr J G Talbot MP on the 3rd October, 1872, and it was intended to consecrate the building on St. Augustine's Day, 26th May, in the next year, but this was not to be; for although the building was finished in time, about £3000 of the total cost of £5000 was still owing, and the consecration was deferred until the church was out of debt, on 2nd December 1874. The church was in use for public worship, however, from 4th June 1873 onwards.

Church History

Church built 1865-6; parish created 1867 from Forest Hill Christchurch.

Built: 1862

Architect: W Smith

Listing: not listed

The original Church was constructed in 1862, in the Victorian Gothic style. Following Second World War damage [1940] alterations and repairs were carried out in 1952. Accommodation comprises nave, north aisle, chancel, sanctuary, baptistery, clergy vestry, hall, toilets, store and narthex. There are also church halls located on the site.

The Church is constructed of load-bearing external walls rendered on many elevations, with stone dressings and tracery to windows, quoins to buttresses, copings, string courses, plinths and facing to the north transept. The building is covered with pitched roofs clad in natural slate with flat roofs above the vestries.

Church History

1st Church

The 1st church was built in 1878 and was damaged in the Second World War [1943]. During this time services were held at Lower Hall. When this was destroyed in 1944 services were held in St Luke's Taymount Rise, which itself was damaged in 1945 and services were then held in a private house. St Luke's Hall was rebuilt in 1948 and St Luke's was rebuilt and rededicated to St Paul in 1950.

Church 1882-3, destroyed 1943; parish created 1887 from Forest Hill Christchurch.

The church of Forest Hill, St Paul was made redundant in 1996 and has been sold for residential purposes. Built: 1882 – 83 Architects: Appleton & Mountford

The church was bombed in the Second World War and has been completely demolished. A former Congregational church was purchased in 1965 and became the new St Paul's. This church was declared redundant and sold for residential use in 1996. The buildings were within the area of the present parish of Forest Hill, Christ Church with St Paul.

Description

"[The church] had an accommodation greater than the number of parishioners: the church was seated for a thousand, but the population of the parish was only 678."

"The original church in Waldenshaw Road - the one that was seated for more than the total population of the parish - was designed by Apleton and Mountford, and built in 1882-3. It was bombed, and has been entirely demolished."

(from 'Parish Churches of London', Basil F L Clarke, Batsford, 1966)

NB Queens Road now Taymount Rise.

2nd Church

Taymount Rise, Forest Hill Built: 1863 Architect: J Hine & T Roger Smith
The church was declared redundant and sold for residential use in 1996.

Description

"The church in Taymount Rise was built as a Congregational church in 1863: the architects were J Hine of Plymouth and T Roger Smith. It afterwards became Spiritualist (St Luke's Church of the Spiritual Evangel). It was bought as the new St Paul's, adapted, and consecrated on 24 January 1965. It is an ugly, rather pleasant little building, with an open porch, French thirteenth-century, in the front, and a small tower beside it. The inside has been divided into nave and aisles by iron columns bearing round arches: the galleries have been taken down. Font, pulpit, and lectern are from the old St Paul's: the priest's stalls came from a Baptist chapel at Reigate. The wheel window over the altar has glass by Alan Younger. This is a far more attractive church than its ambitious predecessor."

(from 'Parish Churches of London', Basil F L Clarke, Batsford, 1966)

Church History

Church built 1885-6; parish created 1891 from St Mildred.

Built: 1886 / 1912 Architect: Charles Bell Listing: not listed

The oldest parts of the church were constructed in 1886 as a chapel of ease to St Mildred's. This phase included the chancel, north-east organ chamber and vestries, and south east chapel, all to the design of Charles Bell RIBA. In 1912, three bays of the nave and aisles were erected and the chancel and vestries restored and rearranged to the designs of Percy Leeds ARIBA. An altar recess was added to the east wall of the south transept by Henry Whiteman Rising in 1923. In 1967 the temporary west wall of 1912 was finally replaced by E F Starling who designed a new west wall, narthex and vestries, linked by a covered way to new halls to the south and west of the church. This work was funded by the sale of the old church hall site and part of the vicarage garden, located to the south of the church. In 1993, following structural problems, the eastern apse was demolished. A temporary infill wall was constructed on the line of the sanctuary arch. The principal materials used in the construction are Kentish ragstone, Bath stone and brick. The pitched roofs are finished in machine-made clay tiles and the flat roofs in asphalt.

St. Augustine's Church at Grove Park celebrated its Golden Jubilee in 1936 with a pageant.

Church History

The Mission was formed at Admere Road in 1880 and the Mission Hall Hither Green was built in 1884.

Church built 1892; parish created 1888 from Lewisham St MaryThe church was designed by Ernest Newton and built by

St Swithun's Church, c. 1950

Parmenter of Braintree, Essex. It is built of red Wrotham brick with Bath stone windows. The church was damaged during the Second World War [1940] and services were held in the Vestry until the church was repaired in 1946. The individual chairs shown in the photograph were replaced after World War II by pews from the bombed church of Christ Church, Lee Park. The new parish of St. Swithun's was created on November 1888. On 19th July 1884 a Mission Church was opened which now serves as the church hall. The foundation stone for the present church was laid on 2nd July 1892. By 1902 the nave was complete and by 1904 the chancel and transepts were finished. Plans for elaborate decoration had to be abandoned because of the migration of the wealthier residents Built: 1892 Architect: Ernest Newton Listing: grade C The church was built in 1892 to the designs of the architect Ernest Newton. The tapering chancel and Lady Chapel with vestries under were added in 1904. The original mission church abuts the building to the east and is now used as a parish hall.

The accommodation comprises nave, north and south aisles, chancel, sanctuary, south east chapel, narthex and gallery over. Beneath the sanctuary and the south east chapel are situated the upper vestry, lower vestry, and priest's vestry.

The church is constructed in buttressed load bearing brickwork faced with red Wrotham bricks with a slate damp proof course. The window and door dressings and window tracery are in Bath stone and the copings to the gables and buttress tablings are in Portland stone. Roofs are spanned with timber trusses and are finished in slate.

Church History

The first church was built in the 11th Century and the 2nd in 1813. The 3rd church was built opposite Lee Terrace.

The church seen in the distance is the second parish church of Lee which had been built in 1814 to replace the mediaeval church. However, it was not soundly built, and the population of the parish was increasing. The present church was erected in 1839 - 1841 on the south side of Lee Terrace. Most of the 1814 church was demolished but part of the tower remains in the old churchyard on the north side.

Built: 1839 – 41

Architect: John Brown

Listing: grade 2***

Built in 1839-41 to a design by John Brown of Norwich, the Commissioner's type church with coupled lancet windows has an ornate west tower with octagonal top stage and spire. Inside the aisles are as high as the nave with slender quatrefoil columns. Remodelling was carried out in 1875 by James Brooks, when the chancel was lengthened, and given aisles and a stone vault, the nave galleries were removed and a wooden vault added, and a vaulted baptistery inserted on the tower. The interior is remarkable for its elaborately painted walls and its stained glass, much by Clayton and Bell.

A78/18M/H5	Northbrook Church of England School or Lee National Schools, Church Street and later Hedgeley Street. In 1871 the then Earl of Northbrook donated land to St. Margaret's Parish Church to enable them to build an Infants School to cater for the fast increasing population of the area. The Baring family, which adopted the title of Northbrook, were Lords of the Manor of Lee from the mid-eighteenth century. The school adopted the Baring family motto - Probitate et Labore - Through Honesty and Work. Over the years the original school was expanded to form the Hedgley Street Junior and Infants School, becoming Northbrook School in the early years of the 20th century. "The school was opened in 1884 in the sincere conviction..... that religion is the basis of character, and that no education can be complete which has not a spiritual foundation." (Service of Commemoration - Silver Jubilee Celebrations 1884-1934). At the outset of the Second World War in September 1939 the school was quickly evacuated and in October 1940 a bomb almost completely destroyed the buildings. In 1953 the decision was made to build a Church of England mixed comprehensive school on the original site and Northbrook School was officially opened by Princess Margaret in December 1957. The school now comes within the Parish of the Church of The Good Shepherd and close links are maintained with the church to this day

Church History

The Tin Church in Ronver Road was built in 1872 and burnt down in 1879.
The 2nd church was built 1879.

Church built 1878-9, replacing 1872 iron church; parish created 1881 from Lee St Margaret & Lee Park.

Built: 1878-79

Architect: H Elliot

Listing: not listed

The church has a lofty nave, lean-to aisles, transepts, apsidal chancel, and entrance porch across the length of the West end. It has no tower, rather a bell turret.

Externally the walls are faced in a Kentish ragstone with soft (probably Bath) stone dressings. The interior of the walls are fairfaced gault brickwork. Roofs are plain red clay tiles. A church built in the late Victorian period, typical of its time, solid but undistinguished which could be overcome by the introduction of some decorations.

In 1992/3 the church underwent major internal alterations with the removal of pews, lowering of pew platforms and close carpeting which have improved its spatial appearance and introduced great flexibility of use.

Church History

1st church

The 1st church was built in 1881 and was consecrated on 12 December 1881. It was destroyed during the Second World War [1940] and a temporary church was built in 1941, which was destroyed by fire in 1941. The parish was created 1888 from Lee St Margaret & Lee Park. The 2nd church was built in 1957.

2nd Church

Built: 1957

Listing: not listed

The present building was rebuilt in 1957, the old foundations and some portions of the old walls are retained throughout the building, varying in height from a few brick courses up to some 6 - 9 feet, are retained throughout the building except along the north aisle wall.

The building is of simple rectangular plan 100 feet by 50 feet but divided internally into a cruciform with barrel vaulted nave, transepts and chancel without clerestories with vestries flanking the chancel and aisles flanking the nave, but terminated at their western ends by two porches. The aisles are divided from the nave by a three-bay colonnade and each bay of the aisle is lit by five small semicircular headed windows. In the gable walls of chancel and transepts are three tall semi-circular headed windows, surmounted in the transept walls by a circular 'bullseye' window.

The simple brick and tile exterior expresses the internal cruciform planning, which is emphasised by a small copper covered fleche rising from the crossing.

A number of fittings such as the choir stalls, wall panelling, pulpit and font come from the demolished church of St. Peter, Lee. The choir stalls have been described as some of the best work of Sir George Gilbert Scott.

In the early 1990's, the church was sub-divided to form a hall at the western end of the Nave and an outer south aisle has been added to provide parish accommodation.

The church building has had a literally up and down history! The first St Peter's church was built in 1871 and stood at the junction of Lyme Farm Road and Courtlands Avenue where a cross now marks the site. In 1937 the church was closed or lack of members. After the war the situation changed and demand for a church grew. The old church had suffered bomb damage so it was decided to move to the church hall on the corner of Weigall Road. It was here that a new church was dedicated in 1960. When this developed structural problems it was replaced in 1983 by the present smaller, dual purpose building. At the same time Raglan Court, a block of retirement flats, was built on the site.

Church History

Built: 1774 – 77

Architect: George Gibson junior

Listing: grade B

The church is of stone construction with stone dressings. It has a crypt and other rooms below most of the building. The tower at the west end is the oldest part of the church, the lower parts being perpendicular (dating from 1498-1512) and remaining from the medieval church. The rest of the church was rebuilt 1774-77 by George Gibson Jnr to a rectangular "preaching box with galleries" plan with small semi-circular apse (base of which still visible in the crypt) and galleries to the north and south. There was an organ covering the west arch into the tower.

The church suffered major fire damage in 1830. The interior and roof was rebuilt similarly to the previous church, only to be remodelled in 1881 by the installation of timber columns to replace the original cast iron, the opening up of the timbers to the ceiling, new pews and a new pulpit. At this time the steps from the tower into the church were added, and Sir Arthur Blomfield designed the present chancel to replace the semi-circular apse. The chancel arrangement was again altered in the late 20th century to a fine design by Keith Murray in line with the principals of the Liturgical Movement. The new flooring is Purbeck Thornback polished limestone and the five-legged rectangular altar is of Green Purbeck "marble".

There are transept-like north and south wings to the church, that on the south side forming a classical four-columned porch with pediment giving onto the main entrance lobby and staircase up to the gallery on this side. On the north there is a ground floor sacristy, toilet and stepped north entrance lobby, with a stair leading to the north gallery. There is a store room here also, in which is visible the timber structure to the plastered barrel vault over the first floor landing.

The actual (double-height, Victorian) north transept has a stair leading down to the rooms beneath the Victorian chancel. The south transept is used on the ground floor as a chapel of reservation, whilst above a semi-circular arched window of traditional design has allowed a parish office to be created.

Beneath the chancel are a number of rooms, including small office, an old sacristy and toilet. Whilst these rooms are on the same level as the old crypt (itself at the same level as the original medieval church), there is no access into it and the stairs beneath the tower are used for this purpose. The crypt extends under the whole of the eighteenth century church, although only about half of the area is at present accessible. The structure here is vaulted brickwork; at the east end (beneath the old apse) are two chambers containing coffins.

As well as crypt stairs, there is a porch to the west door at the base of the tower, the roof of which is said to be made up from the original Georgian pulpit sounding board. The upper parts of the tower are accessible from a vyse stair projecting from the south east corner, with both internal and external. The top of this projection is roofed in Kentish Rag and flint. The stair gives access first to an empty room (which at one time may have given access in turn onto a second level west end gallery), and then to the ringing chamber over. There is a clock chamber between it and the belfry, which in turn gives access via a dormer onto the slopping (but hidden) roof, all three last being accessible by timber stairs, trap door and ladder arrangements.

The belfry contains a peal of bells hung to iron frames, which are rung regularly.

The church is set in a large mainly grassed churchyard, the western part of which is bisected by a public footpath. There are numerous tombs and monuments set amongst yew and deciduous trees, including many chest tombs and a brick obelisk-type structure near the main entrance. Boundary walls are generally brick, and parts of the yard are fenced in black steel railings. The churchyard is of some importance to the nature conservation of London, since it contains rare ferns and lichens which date back to the nineteenth century.

Archives

Other parish registers are held at the London Metropolitan. These are: Baptism Registers, 1703 - 1920, Marriage Registers, 1703 - 1921 and Burial Registers for 1703 - 1911. Transcripts of these are also held at the London Metropolitan Archives. Microfilm copies cover 1702- 1920 baptisms, 1703 - 1741, 1750 - 1921 marriages and burials 1743- 1911 (Some originals at L.M.A.) The survival of these registers is incomplete due to a fire in the Church in 1830.

The following items were received from the Rev. David Garlick, and previous incumbents. This is the first comprehensive list of the archive of St. Mary's, Lewisham, which formerly had been arranged in a number of different lists

Acquired by: Permanent Loan

Access: Open unless otherwise stated. A number of registers were damaged during a fire at the church in 1830. Note a number of registers are UFP or Unfit For Production. Use microfilm, Bishops Transcripts and transcriptions instead. Some information has been lost in the fire.

Church History

Church built 1863-65; parish created 1865 from Lewisham St Mary.

Built: 1863 - 65 Architect: Sir George Gilbert Scott

Listing: grade 2

The Rev S R Davies, assistant priest of Lee, inherited money and decided to build a church. Scott was chosen as architect, and he was unlimited as to cost: £16,500 was spent. The church was begun in 1863, and consecrated on Easter eve, 1865. It was meant to have a tower and spire, but these were never built, owing to the nature of the site.

The walls are of Kentish rag, with Bath stone dressings: the detached shafts are of Mansfield stone. The style is Scott's thirteenth-century, with some French details— 'eclecticism of a chastened kind, and the union in some degree of the merits of the different styles'. The glass, all by Clayton and Bell, was mostly destroyed in the War. The reredos, by Charles Buckeridge, Scott's young and trusted assistant, was carved, by Redfern and decorated by Bell (1873). A faculty was given on 11 September 1875 for a chancel screen by James Brooks, and a south chapel, to which the reredos, removed from the chancel, was to be taken. A further faculty, 20 June 1899, gave leave for a new marble credence, and iron gates to the chapel; the architect was P A Robson.

The organ gallery was erected by Sir Charles Nicholson just before the Second World War. In 1952-3 the sanctuary was remodelled, and the reredos cleaned and painted. The east window, and windows of the south chapel, are by J E Nuttgens, 1954.

Church History

Founded in the Old Kent Road [now New Kent Road] in 1845. The 1st church was built near Avonley Road in 1846. The 2nd church was built in St James' Road in 1854. The manor of Hatcham, which covered much of the area north and south of modern New Cross Road, was bought by the Haberdashers' Company in the early 17th century. St James Church, just south of New Cross Road, was built in 1854. It was converted for educational use by the Laban Centre for Movement and Dance in 1970. The parish of St. James was formed in 1845 to serve the expanding population of New Cross and the present church was built in 1854. The street leading to St. James' church, formerly Church Road, is now called "St. James's". The houses were built between 1862 and 1874. Church built 1849-54, replacing temporary church (1846); redundant 1981; parish created 1845 from Deptford St Paul.

Built: 1853 – 54 Architect: W L B Granville Diocesan Record Office: London Metropolitan Archives

The church was made redundant in 1981 and leased initially to Goldsmiths College, later to the Laban Centre of Movement and Dance until their own building was built. In 2005 it was leased for use as a training centre to the London Development Agency. The replacement St James' church occupies the ground floor of what was the Herald Youth Club Hall nextdoor.

Description

"A building committee was formed in 1844, and a temporary church was built in 1846. A site was bought from the governors of Christ's Hospital. The design was made by W L B Granville, and shown at the Royal Academy in 1849. The Ecclesiologist found fault with the design: 'This promises to be one of the worst specimens of modern Pointed which the last few years have produced.. . We were in hopes that this particular form of architectural enormity had died away.'

The foundation stone was laid on 18 June 1853, and the church was consecrated on 17 October 1854 on a site bought from the governors of Christ's Hospital. The cost was £4,695. From the ecclesiological point of view, there is a good deal of fault to find. The details were old-fashioned at the time that the church was built, and the plan is pretentious: why should a parish church of this size have transepts with both eastern and western aisles?

The Rev A H B Granville resigned in 1863, and was succeeded by the Rev Arthur Tooth - a person of no special importance in himself, but who is remembered as one of the confessors of the ritualistic movement. In his time there were several alterations to the church, by F Rogers.

operation was performed on the north transept: the aisles were extended by apses, and one was made into a sacristy, and the other into a baptistery. He also erected a screen, a Lady chapel altar, and several windows. An altar stone was inserted into the wooden holy table - and afterwards removed. Tooth was imprisoned in Horsemonger Gaol in 1877, under the Public Worship Regulation Act. A new vestry was built in 1897, designed by W. Gilbert Scott. The inside has been redecorated, and there is post-War glass by Francis H. Spear." (from 'Parish Churches of London', Basil F L Clarke, Batsford, 1966)

New Church

Built: 1982 Architect: Raymond Hall Listing: not listed

St James' church occupies the ground floor of what was the Herald Youth Club. The congregation moved from the old St James' church (which was leased to the Laban Centre of Movement and Dance). The new church was designed to be a blending of items from the old church, such as the altar frontal, stained glass and pulpit, melded with the modern design, lighting and organ of the new worship area. The architect for this transformation was Raymond Hall with Kew Brothers as the main contractors. The church service for the Hallowing was held by the Right Revd Ronald Bowlby, Lord Bishop of Southwark, on April 25th 1982.

Church History

Iron building ?

Church built 1893-4; parish created 1891 from Hatcham Park. The Haberdashers' Company, which developed the Telegraph Hill area in the last quarter of the 19th century, provided a church, schools and open spaces for its new tenants. St. Catherine's Church was built in 1893 and was extended ten years later, in 1913. The vicarage is on the left.

Built: 1893 – 94 Architect: Henry Stock

Listing: not listed

The church was built between 1893 and 1894 to the designs of H Stock who was surveyor to the Haberdashers Company. The church was damaged by fire 6 May 1913 and was restored in 1914. The church was damaged during the Second World War [1940] and services were held in Haberdashers Askes Boys School and later in the parish hall. The church was re-roofed and restored in 1950. In 1972 the western end of the church was incorporated into a new community centre designed by Gordon Cook. St Catherine's Library and housing on St Catherine's Drive also form part of the complex.

The church is built in an Early English Gothic style in Kentish ragstone with Bathstone dressings. The main roofs are pitched and slated. The accommodation comprises nave, aisles, chancel, chapel, choir vestry, priests vestry, organ chamber and small undercroft. The church is substantially built, in brick with Ragstone facing and Bathstone weathering stones and window surrounds. The nave is spanned by timber trusses and the roof slopes are finished with Westmoreland slate or Welsh slate.

Church History

Southend Proprietary Chapel was licensed in 1823 and the 2nd church was built in 1928. The chapel in Bromley Road, opposite the Lower Mill pond, was built by the Forster family in 1824 as a chapel of ease, to save villagers the long trip to the parish church of St. Mary's in Lewisham.

It is now used as a parish hall for St. John's church, which was built behind in 1928. Proprietary chapel built 1824, succeeded by new building 1928; parish created 1916 from Lewisham St Mary (detached) & Catford St Laurence.

Built: 1928 Architect: Sir Charles Nicholson Listing: grade C

Built to the design of Sir Charles Nicholson in 1928. Vestry added in 1932. The west end remains unfinished. The church comprises a nave of two bays and a chancel of three bays, with side aisles, north and south transepts, Lady Chapel at the south east corner, and a choir vestry within single storey extension on the south side. Re-ordering in 1977 included a new sanctuary within the crossing and a corona by John Hayward, plus the enclosure of the east end sanctuary to create a clergy vestry.

Church History

Church built 1827-32; parish created 1855 from Lewisham St Mary. A church was an essential part of any quality suburb, so the people of Sydenham set about the planning of St Bartholomew's as soon as the enclosure of the common provided a prominent site.

St Bartholomew's Church, c. 1895

However, various disputes delayed the start and the progress of the work, which took from 1827 to 1832.

The architect was Lewis Vulliamy.

Built: 1827 – 32

Architect: Lewis Vulliamy

Listing: grade 2*

The church was built between 1827 and 1832, and the architect was Lewis Vulliamy. It is understood that the original church had a plain ceiling with pillars of brick and plaster and an organ gallery at the west end. There was no chancel.

Extensive alterations were carried out by Edwin Nash between 1858 and 1874: the chancel, north transept and vestries were added, the present nave arcade erected to a greater height and all the main roof structures rebuilt. The gallery was taken down. There is much fine stained glass in the church, including the west window by Clayton and Bell, and east windows (1953) by Francis Spear. The elaborate reredos, erected between 1901 and 1910, is by Henry Wilson.

There is an extensive crypt which was adapted by Eric Howard during the 1980s for club purposes. The church is the subject of a painting by Camille Pissarro in the National Gallery.

Church History

Formed in Christ Church Sydenham about 1862. The 1st church was built in 1866.

Church built 1865-6; closed 1976, demolished 1981; parish created 1855 from Lewisham St Mary.

Built: 1924 Architect: E C Christmas Listing: not listed

The church is located on Trinity Path, off Sydenham Park, and was constructed as the church hall of the original church in 1924. The hall was designed and built by E C Christmas. The older church was demolished around 1979 at which point the present use of the building commenced.

The long axis of the hall is orientated approximately east/west, with the main entrance at the east end. Worship is conducted across the width of the hall, facing north.

The main hall is surrounded on its east, west and north sides by ancillary rooms. The new rooms were constructed by the north west corner in the 1980s.

Church History

Church built 1901-3; parish created 1909 from Lower Sydenham.

Built: 1904

Architect: George Fellowes Prynne

Listing: grade C

The original designs of Fellowes Prynne were not fully implemented in 1904, presumably because of financial constraints. As a result, a number of the features of the original design were left incomplete. Items that were not finished in that initial phase of construction include the chapel on the south side of the sanctuary and a further two bays to the nave at the west end of the building.

However, completed accommodation comprises a raised sanctuary and chancel behind a fine full height rood screen with a nave altar set before the screen. To the north of the chancel is the choir vestry with access to the organ loft. Behind the choir vestry is the Charcoal Room and priest's vestry.

To the west of the nave altar is the nave with north and south aisles and remnants of the original design of porches at the ends of the north and south aisles. There is a small lobby constructed within the 'temporary' construction at the west end of the church.

The church is constructed of load-bearing brick walls and columns decorated in perpendicular Gothic style with bands of limestone supporting a pitched roof clad with clay tiles. The roof structure is concealed behind a horizontally boarded ceiling internally but follows the same profile as the four pointed chancel arch. The various areas of temporary construction are finished in yellow stock brick and roofed with slate. The interior of the church is light and lofty and the fine white rood screen forms a visual focus through which the high altar can be seen.

Church History

Damaged during the Second World War [1944], when services were held in the Church Room. The church reopened in 1947.

Church built 1864-67, demolished 1982; parish created 1869 from Sydenham St Bartholomew.

Built: 1983 – 84 Architect: Nigel Melhuish Listing: not listed

The church was built after the demolition of the existing Victorian building. Some residential accommodation was also built on part of the site.

The main structure of the building is in laminated timber with reinforced concrete columns. The external walling is cavity brickwork and blockwork, with LBC 'Cotswold' facings. It was designed to a carefully worked out brief, and the volume provides a permanently seated 'church' area and a large hall area, these main spaces being divided by a 'buffer' area which allows for either the church or hall to be extended or for all three spaces to be used as a single volume. The entrance to the building is from Coombe Lane and on this side there are the kitchens, lavatories and vestries.

Church History

The parish created 1879 from St Bartholomew, Forest Hill Christ Church, Lewisham St Mary.

First church

Church built 1863-4 as chapel-of-ease to St Bartholomew (architect Sir James Knowles), , destroyed during the Second World War [1940], when services were held in the Mission Hall, Bell Green. 2nd church built 1958.

Built: 1955 – 56 Architect: W H Hobday & F J Maynard Listing: not listed

St Michael's church is located on Champion Crescent in the lower part of Sydenham. Champion Crescent forms an island, which houses the church, school and the adjacent vicarage. The present church of St Michael and All Angels was constructed after the Second World War following the destruction of the original 1868 building due to war damage. Accommodation comprises nave and chancel, with a vestibule at the west end. From the vestibule, lead toilets and a staircase up to the gallery in which the organ is located. At the north east side is a chapel, which is matched by a vestry on the south east. The church also adjoins the church hall on the south side. The construction comprises a series of reinforced concrete portal frames bridged by concrete purlins and roofed using slates. Two side aisles are created below flat roofs which are finished with asphalt. The principal east and west elevations, above the single storey aisles, are of full height glazing set between the portal frames. The east and west elevations are of brickwork. Flooring, generally, is of thermoplastic tiles leading to a chancel which is raised two steps from the nave. The sanctuary itself is raised by one step; the altar again is on a dais of two further steps. The font is located below the organ gallery and is finished with a carved font cover.
