Introduction
The original Boys' Industrial Home was opened at 17 Rojack Road on 3 May 1873 "for the reception and industrial training of destitute boys". There were just six boys in the home in 1873. By 1875 the home included 16 Rojack Road (both these houses still survive), and the number of boys had increased to nine. The purpose of the home was to ensure that "a boy is rescued from the perils of the street, fed, clothed, housed, educated [they attended Christ Church School] and taught a trade [shoe-mending for the older boys while the younger ones made bundles of firewood to sell], and finally started in life with a fair prospect of doing well". The home was largely supported by voluntary contributions. F J Horniman was a major benefactor - he subscribed 18 guineas a year, the annual cost of supporting one child. Further support came from the Reformatory and Refuge Union. This was a national organization, founded by the great philanthropist the Earl of Shaftesbury, to offer grants and advice to homes set up to help deprived and destitute children. The Union also provided annual inspections and reports on the homes.

Admission to the home was carefully controlled. Children needed a recommendation, and the committee offered places to "those whom they know to be destitute, or the children of poverty-stricken parents". By 1881 there were 25 boys in the home. The committee felt that having the school in two houses was inefficient. Finally they found a suitable site for a new home in Perry Rise. Thomas Aldwinckle, an active member of the committee, was a young architect living at that time in Church Rise, Forest Hill. He agreed to make plans for the new home. Aldwinckle was responsible for several other local buildings including Forest Hill Pools, the old Ladywell Baths and the Girls' Industrial Home at Louise House, Dartmouth Road.

As the president of the Boys' Industrial Home the Earl of Shaftesbury laid the foundation stone on 18 June 1883. The 83 year-old Earl returned to Forest Hill on 13 May 1884 to attend the formal opening. This was clearly quite an event. The Daily Dispatch reported that the Lord Mayor of London "attended in state". Other guests included Viscount Lewisham and the Hon and Rev Canon Augustus Legge, vicar of St Bartholomew's Church. "The road from the Forest Hill station", the paper continues, "which is known as Perry Rise, was gaily decorated with bunting...a large number of residents turned out to cheer the Lord Mayor". The Home was called Shaftesbury House, in honour of its president. Shaftesbury House continued as the Boys Industrial Home until at least 1939. Early in 2000 Shaftesbury House, 67 Perry Rise was demolished.

The Girls' Industrial Home originally opened in Rojack Road on 20 July 1881. In 1891 Louise House, Dartmouth Road had been completed, also to the designs of Thomas Aldwinckle. The Girls' Industrial Home gave girls the skills needed to become domestic servants. The Girls' Home was housed in Louise House, Dartmouth Road until about 1940. After the War the building became a LCC Maternity and Child Welfare Centre and it was later taken over by Lewisham Social Services Department. In 1990 it housed a Crèche and offices.
The records of Forest Hill Boys’ and Girls’ Industrial Homes the Boys’ Home were evacuated to Newdigate, Surrey on 1 September 1939 [A/58/4/26]. The financial records [A/58/4/23-26] show that the Boys’ Home closed in August/September 1943, with the Charity appearing to be wound up in 1945. The collection includes Annual Reports, Committee minutes, accounts and records of subscribers.

Introduction
During the first half of the 19th century there were periodic panics over the intentions of the French, and fears that they were planning to invade England. As a result of such a scare in 1859 the Government encouraged the formation of local volunteer forces, prepared to defend the realm (or, some cynics of the time suggested, the property of the wealthy) in the event of a French invasion. Sydenham and Forest Hill were not slow to respond to this patriotic call. A public meeting was held at the Dartmouth Arms on 29 June 1859. John Scott Russell (a naval architect of considerable note, who constructed the Great Eastern steamship) was in the chair. The proposal put to the meeting was: That in the present state of Europe and with the view of maintaining an imposing neutrality it is essential that the defences of the Empire should be such as to defy attack. That with this view it is desirable that a volunteer force should be enrolled & that a rifle company be raised within this district to be called the Sydenham Rifle Company.

There were just three dissenters who supported an amendment that it was not desirable to raise a Volunteer Rifle Corps. A committee was formed under the chairmanship of John Scott Russell to carry through this proposal. Other wealthy and influential local people served on the committee, including Robert von Glehn of Peak Hill, Rev Taylor Jones of Sydenham College and Edwin Clark, an engineer who built canals in Russia, docks in India and Peru, and the time-ball on the Royal Observatory at Greenwich. Before a local force could be recognised, the Government insisted that a number of conditions be met. These included an adequate and safe firing-range and secure storage for the weapons. The committee met regularly over the following months (principally at John Scott Russell's house, Westwood Lodge, or the Forester Inn, Perry Vale) to try to resolve these and other issues.

By the end of July 1859 the committee had found suitable land for their firing range. Mr William Dacres Adams had offered a strip of land between Forest Hill and Sydenham stations, on the eastern side of the railway line. The firing range followed roughly the present line of Dacres Road, from near its junction with Perry Vale to just past the junction with Inglemere Road. However, within six months Mr Adams was expressing concern at the amount of disruption caused by building the butts (banks of earth at the Inglemere Road end of the range, intended to stop stray bullets). He was also worried about the safety of the range, but the committee managed to reassure him. When completed the range was some 325 yards long.

The committee appointed a drill sergeant (a professional soldier who would train the volunteers). He demanded accommodation. The committee still needed a secure place for their weapons. They also required headquarters for the volunteers and a meeting room for themselves. They found a building that could combine all these functions. Mrs Goding offered a house on the corner of Perry Rise and Hindsley's Place, built about 1845. It would be rent- free on condition that the committee undertook certain repairs and improvements. This they accepted. The building was renamed The Armoury and, in early 1860, became the headquarters of the Sydenham Rifle Corps. It consisted of an armoury, committee rooms and accommodation for the drill sergeant. Outside, there was a drill ground. This would have been at the back of the building, on the area now covered by a large extension.
The next task was to enlist sufficient volunteers. This proved difficult, which is hardly surprising as drill practice was held three times a week, at 7 a.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays and at 7 p.m. on Saturdays. They eventually mustered a roll of 60 volunteers. By the end of December 1860 the conditions required by the Government had been satisfied and the Sydenham Rifle Company became officially known as the 8th Kent Rifle Volunteer Corps. The committee felt a little aggrieved that they were only the 8th rifle corps in Kent. They were, in fact, the first to pass a resolution to form a volunteer corps but because of difficulties of recruitment, only 8th to gain government recognition. John Scott Russell was appointed the first Captain-Commandant of the Corps in 1859, a post he held until 1861. Life for the Rifle Volunteer was not all drill and target practice. Several members formed a dramatic club and in 1869 they gave a performance of three one-act plays at the Foresters Hall, Clyde Vale. Political circumstances changed, and interest in the volunteer corps waned. The 8th Kent Volunteer Rifle Corps was disbanded in 1871. Introduction

Prendergast Grammar School was founded as a fee-paying grammar school in Rushey Green, Catford in 1890 under the will of the late Reverend Joseph Prendergast, DD (Cantab), 1791-1875, Headmaster of Colfe's School 1831-1857. His endowment made provision for a girls' grammar school and was supplemented from several quarters, including some ancient charities associated with the parish of Lewisham. The largest bequest was that of Thomas Shipman. The school crest is therefore composed of half the Prendergast family crest and half that of the Shipman family. Throughout its long history the school has benefited from its association with the Worshipful Company of Leathersellers. They are the school trustees and it is through their generosity that the school was able to move to its present excellent accommodation in 1995.

In the first half of C20th the school accepted an increasing number of scholarship girls from LCC Elementary schools. Following the Education Act 1944, the school became a maintained grammar school with voluntary aided status. In 1977 Prendergast changed from a grammar school to a comprehensive school. Prendergast's School today is a Voluntary Aided comprehensive school, the school.

The school is split over two, somewhat constricted, sites about 200 metres apart.

The upper site

In 1995, for reasons of space, the school moved to its present site following extensive refurbishment. The site had been built in 1884-5 by Charles Evans for the West Kent Grammar School, which closed in 1905 and the building was bought by the London County Council for the Brockley County Grammar School which opened in 1907. They then extended the building as the Brockley County Secondary School between 1914-18 and 1921. The Assembly Hall has an exceptional series of mural paintings executed between 1933 and 1936 by Charles Mahoney, Evelyn Dunbar, Mildred Eldridge and Violet Martin, together with stained glass panels, salvaged from the Catford site. The murals are in the Romantic and Narrative School of English painting and are considered amongst the best examples of their kind and commands fine views over London, Kent and Surrey. It is a Grade II listed building. It houses most of the classrooms and administrative offices. Adjacent to this, a new music block was neatly incorporated into the southern perimeter wall in 2005.

The lower site on Adelaide Avenue

Contains an assemblage of post war buildings comprising science laboratories, a sports hall, a modern languages block, an examination hall (The Leathersellers’ Centre), art studios and facilities for design and technology.

Although located in the open space of Hilly Fields, this is a public park and the school cannot use it for sport. Accordingly, the sports ground is located in Bellingham, about 3km to its south.

Introduction
This collection contains visitor guides for the Horniman's Museum in Sydenham and various personal letters collected by the Museum.

Victorian tea trader Frederick John Horniman began collecting specimens and artefacts from around the World in the 1860's. Horniman's key mission was to bring the world to Forest Hill and he opened part of his family house to the public so they could view the riches he had collected. As the collections increased they outgrew the family home and in 1898 Horniman commissioned Charles Harrison Townsend to design a new Museum. The Museum opened in 1901 and was dedicated with the surrounding land as a free gift to the people of London by Frederick Horniman forever for their recreation instruction and enjoyment. The original collections comprised natural history specimens, cultural artefacts and musical instruments. Over the last 100 years the Museum has added significantly to the original bequest with Horniman's original collections comprising only 10% of current ethnography and musical instrument holdings. Further buildings were added to the original during the course of the last century notably in 1911 when a new building was donated by Frederick's son Emslie. In 1999 the Museum demolished some of the later additions and embarked on a Centenary Development to create a new extension and several associated spaces. This new development opened on 14 June 2002.

Correspondence and notes of Martin Tupper

Tupper, Martin Farquhar (1810–1889), poet and writer, was born at 20 Devonshire Place, Marylebone, on 17 July 1810, son of Dr Martin Tupper FRS (1780–1844), a successful London physician, and his wife, Ellin Devis Marris (d. 1847), daughter of the Lincolnshire landscape painter Robert Marris. He attended Egglesfield House, Brentford Butts, Eagle House, Brook Green, Charterhouse. Already afflicted with a bad stammer (the result, perhaps, of mistreatment at Egglesfield House), he was ill-suited for life at a large public school and at about the age of sixteen he was withdrawn from Charterhouse and sent to a succession of private tutors until his matriculation from Christ Church, Oxford on 21 May 1828. At Oxford, although his stammer precluded him from honours, Tupper read assiduously and formed what became a lifelong, if sometimes strained, friendship with W. E. Gladstone, whom in 1830 he beat for a theological prize offered by the regius professor of divinity. Following his graduation in 1832 (he proceeded MA in 1835 and DCL in 1847), Tupper's preference would have been to take orders (he had been a fervent evangelical since childhood), but his halting speech once again proved an impediment and he decided instead to enter Lincoln's Inn. On 26 November 1835, the day after he was called to the bar, Tupper married his cousin Isabelle Devis (1811–1885), the daughter of the historical painter Arthur William Devis (1762–1822). Although the first American tour perhaps marked the high point of his reputation, Tupper's popularity remained largely intact until the early 1860s, when his buoyant optimism about things in general began to seem both naïve and outdated. Increasingly he became the butt, not only of serious critics, but also of the comic press: his stately platitudes were remorselessly parodied and his name became a byword for banality. Even a second American tour in 1876–7 proved a pale shadow of the first. The civil-list pension of £120 which Gladstone procured for him in 1873 (and which he had first urged on Queen Victoria in 1869) was not only welcome but essential. Albury House was heavily mortgaged and permanently let, and in 1880 the Tuppers moved to a modest semi-detached house at 13 Cintra Park, Upper Norwood, London. Here Tupper passed his final years, still turning out verses on topical subjects which were either guyed or ignored, and working on his rambling, self-congratulatory autobiography, which appeared in 1886, shortly before he suffered a disabling stroke. He lingered on for three more years and died peacefully at his home at Cintra Park on 29 November 1889. He was buried in Albury church,

Personal Letter by Ainsworth, William Harrison, Kensal Manor House, Hanon Road Addressee: Tupper, (Martin)

Ainsworth, William Harrison (1805–1882), novelist, born 4 February 1805 at 21 King Street, Manchester, son of Thomas Ainsworth (1778–1824), a solicitor, and his wife, Ann (1778–1842), daughter of the Revd Ralph Harrison (1748–1810), a nonconformist minister and tutor of languages and literature at the Manchester Academy. His parents both belonged to old Lancashire families, on his mother's side including prosperous merchants and members of the peerage; and his paternal grandfather was the noted mathematician Jeremiah Ainsworth. In his youth Ainsworth attended the Unitarian chapel where his maternal grandfather had preached, but in later life he was a 'staunch supporter' of the Church of England.

Lewisham Enclosure Act

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were received from Lewisham Reference Library.

Introduction

These documents have been bound together in one volume. It includes a copy of Lewisham Enclosure Act, which was passed by parliament in 1810. This allowed all the common land in Lewisham to be divided amongst those who already owned land in the parish. They could then enclose their plots (i.e. fence them and prevent others trespassing) and use it as they chose, mainly for farming, later building. The result was that the landowners benefited greatly and the landless lost their access to the commons, which they had used for many centuries for grazing animals, gathering firewood, hunting, fishing, fairs and similar activities. With this is an 1812 list of those that had been allocated land under the 1810 Act. Also an 1849 document concerning the Metropolitan Sydenham Sewage system.

A/59/30  Forest Hill Provident Dispensary: Records

Introduction
This collection contains minute books and annual reports of the Forest Hill Provident Dispensary was founded in 1865 and was at 73 Perry Vale, Forest Hill. Dispensaries were founded for the relief of the suffering poor. There are in London and its immediate vicinity about 35 that may be classed under the title of General Dispensaries, their purpose being to relieve the sick, infirm, and lying-in at their own houses or at the institutions. Some of these are "provident" institutions; that is to say, the relief is not wholly charitable, but a small weekly or periodical subscription is necessary to entitle a person to the benefits of attendance during a sickness.

There is a dislike among the metropolitan poor, and indeed the English poor generally, to entering a hospital, so that these dispensaries are of very great benefit, particularly the provident institutions, as they have none of the humiliating effects which charitable relief produces on some minds, while they encourage the domestic feelings and promote habits of economy and prudence. They are pretty fairly distributed throughout the metropolis; 4 being in the north, 3 in the south, 12 in the east, 8 in the west and 8 central. Of these general dispensaries 13 existed in the year 1800. In the year 1849 they relieved 141,000 patients. Their incomes amount to £14,424; from contributions, £11,470; from property, £2954.

Introduction
This collection contains annual reports, registers of pupils, minute books, financial records, magazines and photographs of Blackheath Proprietary School. In 1831 the Blackheath Proprietary school opened just south of the railway station at Blackheath. The school adopted the new game, and was soon playing the game of Rugby on the heath. In 1858 the Blackheath Football Club was founded by some of the old boys of the school as an open club, and so was born the first rugby club in the world without restricted membership.

A/60/69  Northbrook Church of England School

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

Documents and other material presented to the Local History Department, Lewisham Libraries.

Introduction

In 1871 the then Earl of Northbrook donated land to St. Margaret's Parish Church to enable them to build an Infants School to cater for the fast increasing population of the area. The Baring family, which adopted the title of Northbrook, were Lords of the Manor of Lee from the mid-eighteenth century. The school adopted the Baring family motto - Probitate et Labore - Through Honesty and Work. Over the years the original school was expanded to form the Hedgley Street Junior and Infants School, becoming Northbrook School in the early years of the 20th century. "The school was opened in 1884 in the sincere conviction… that religion is the basis of character, and that no education can be complete which has not a spiritual foundation." (Service of Commemoration - Silver Jubilee Celebrations 1884-1934). At the outset of the Second World War in September 1939 the school was quickly evacuated and in October 1940 a bomb almost completely destroyed the buildings. In 1953 the decision was made to build a Church of England mixed comprehensive school on the original site and Northbrook School was officially opened by Princess Margaret in December 1957. The school now comes within the Parish of the Church of The Good Shepherd and close links are maintained with the church to this day.

A/61/18/1 Year book containing rules, list of members and report, with revised rules of 1901 for the Old Yverdonian Club, a club for 'Old Boys' of certain schools in Blackheath and Eastbourne.
Introduction

W G Grace was the 8th son of 9 children born into a family that all played cricket, including the girls. He burst onto the cricket scene in the 1860s with spectacular force and dominated the game until the end of the century. Influencing cricket this day. He was the world's first sporting superstar, rivalled as a public figure only by Gladstone and Queen Victoria herself. His staggering achievements as both batsman and bowler made him the greatest draw cricket had ever known. Though often depicted as an overgrown schoolboy, W. G. was extremely shrewd and ruthlessly exploited the power his immense popularity gave him. A notorious 'shamateur', he amassed great wealth through cricket, while remaining the standard-bearer for the Gentlemen against the Players for forty years.

In a career spanning 44 years, Grace’s batting average was 39.45 at first class level, an average undoubtedly dragged down by playing into his late fifties. At his peak in the 1870s his first-class season batting averages were regularly between 60 and 70, at a time where uncovered, poorly-prepared pitches meant that scores were far lower than the modern game. His career bowling record of 2809 wickets at the outstanding average of 18.14 speaks for itself. Grace played Test cricket against Australia from 1880 onwards, but he was already past his peak at that stage. He was a doctor by profession and played cricket as a (nominal) amateur throughout his career.

His local connection was inn later years; Grace became the (paid) secretary and manager of the London County Cricket Club, based at Crystal Palace in Penge, London, which played first-class cricket from 1900 to 1904. He lived for some years in Mottingham, a south-east London suburb (a blue plaque marks his residence, 'Fairmont' in Mottingham Lane. The last game of cricket in which W.G. Grace batted was for Eltham at Grove Park on 25 July 1914, a week after his 66th birthday. He contributed an undefeated 69 to a total of 155-6 declared, having begun his innings when they were 31-4. Grove Park made 99-8 in reply. When he died on 23 October 1915) he was buried in Beckenham Crematorium.

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were received from Miss E. Bristow.

Introduction
The year 1897 saw the Diamond Jubilee of Queen Victoria, by this time she had changed from an optimistic young woman and matured into a sombre widow and became the longest reigning British Monarch. 10 years earlier she had celebrated her Golden Jubilee, when Mark Twain had described her procession to a service at Westminster Abbey as `stretched to the limit of sight in both directions'. In 1897 she again where here crowds cheering lined 6 mile procession. Locally other processions were held and this book is the notes of the possession that occurred in Lewisham.

A/63/4 Deeds: The Green Man Hotel Blackheath

Introduction
The Green Man Hotel, which was proved to have existed in the 17th century, was an important staging post in the Dover Road - the business of which is evident. It stood at the very top of Blackheath Hill. The building was also used as a meeting place for many official and unofficial bodies. It was later rebuilt in the 1860s and was demolished in the 1870s.

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre

The following items were received from transferred from Sydenham Library

Introduction
Sir George Grove (1820 - 1900), after receiving his education at the Clapham Grammar School, was trained to be a Civil Engineer, specialising in lighthouses. Between 1847-49 he was employed on the staff of Mr. Robert Stephenson, who was then engaged on the construction of the great tubular bridge across the Menai Straits in North Wales. In 1849, he succeeded Mr. Scott Russell as Secretary of the Society of Arts. In 1852 he became Secretary to the Crystal Palace Company - a position that he held for 21 years. See http://www.pef.org.uk/Pages/Grove.htm

The House before becoming a private house this building served as a farm and perhaps also as an inn. It achieved some fame between 1860 and 1900 as the home of Sir George Grove, who wrote his great musical dictionary here. Ideal Homes http://www.ideal-homes.org.uk/lewisham/sydenham/groves-house.htm

Introduction
In 1824 Henry Lee leased the land from Trinity College and built this house for himself. He and his brother were brickmakers and lime merchants at Loampit Hill from 1793. The family remained in the house until 1858. James Allen, the managing director of P&O, lived here from 1861 until his death in 1874. In 1883 the name was changed to The Clock House and much later to Canada House. The house might have been used to billet Canadian troops during World War I and between the wars it fell into decay, being used by a glass bottle merchant and then a garage. During World War II it was used by builders and deteriorated further. In 1947 it was demolished and replaced by Hither Grove Estate.

Introduction
The Green Man was on the top of Blackheath Hill, adjacent to a bowling green, and dates back to the 17th century, was an important staging post in the Dover Road - the business of which is evident. A/64/7  St Stephens Terrace Lewisham: Records

The following items were received from Mr. J.M Roberts, F.R.I.C.S F.A.I.

Introduction
The houses south of the church were incorporated into Chiesman’s department store c.1900, and have now been demolished. This northern group (17 - 31 Lewisham High Street) survives little altered, but several of the houses have become offices. St.Stephen’s Church and St.Stephan’s Terrace (eight houses north of the church and six to the south) were built in 1865 in a prominent position in Lewisham High Street, close to Lewisham Station. The houses were built with commuting businessmen in mind.

A/65/24 Opening Of New Premises Of London Trustee Savings Bank In Lewisham: Records

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were received from the Borough Librarian.

Introduction
The London Trustees Savings Bank opened new premises at 181 Lewisham High Street in 1965. In 1810, the Reverend Henry Duncan of Ruthwell, Dumfriesshire, set up a bank to help his poorest parishioners save for times of hardship. It was such a popular scheme that by 1818 there were 465 savings banks in Britain (including 182 in Scotland). The Trustee Savings Bank Association (TSBA) was established in 1887 to help the individual banks co-operate and to advise on matters of common concern. The 1985 TSB Act opened the way for the group to restructure in preparation for its stock market flotation in 1986. The following year saw a network of estate agencies set up, the acquisition of Hill Samuel Bank and Target Life, and the launch of Speedlink, Britain’s first telephone banking system. TSB England and Wales became TSB Bank plc in 1989, and the newly named TSB Bank Scotland plc and TSB Bank Northern Ireland plc became its subsidiaries that year. In 1991 Allied Irish Banks bought TSB Bank Northern Ireland and in 1992 TSB Bank Channel Islands became a subsidiary of TSB Bank. In 1995, the merger between TSB and Lloyds Bank formed Lloyds TSB Group plc.

Introduction
In 1896 Archibald Cameron Corbett MP bought the 278 acres of North Park Farm, and began to build houses in Catford and Hither Green, on what is now called the Corbett estate. Between 1896 and 1913 built 3062 houses at prices ranging from £215 to £470. He persuaded the railway company to build a booking hall on the east side of the station [by financing it himself], for the benefit of his residents, and negotiated reduced-rate season tickets to target commuters. Corbett was a Scottish Presbyterian, and gave his roads Scottish names. His idea was for a ‘modern hygeia’ for hard working and respectable people. The plan was for clean uniform housing around a grid system of roads, scattered with numerous churches but no pubs or taverns. He donated the site of St Andrew’s Church. After the completion of this estate in 1910 he turned his attention to his new development at Eltham Park Estate.

Introduction
This is the report on the Hither Green rail crash in which 40 people lost their lives and 80 were wounded. At 21.16 on the 5th November 1967 the 19.43 express Charing Cross to Hastings train crashed off the rails at Hither Green, near the Southern region Continental Goods Depot. Only the 1st 2 carriages of 12 remained on the tracks. 1 overturned completely and the next 2 jack-knifed onto their sides. Under floodlights in driving rain rescuers struggled to free those trapped.

Introduction
On the 4th December 1958 in thick fog 90 people lost their lives and 176 were injured when the 4.56 p.m. express passenger train from Cannon Street to Ramsgate, via Folkestone, formed of 11 bogie coaches hauled by a "Pacific" type engine, passed the Red aspect of the Down Through colour light inner home signal of St. Johns signal box, and then after travelling 138 yards it collided at about 30 m.p.h. with the rear of the 5.18 p.m. 10-coach electric passenger train from Charing Cross to Hayes (Mid Kent line) which was standing at the Parks Bridge Junction colour light home signal. The two girders subsided at once on to the train below completing the destruction of the leading coach and crushing the second coach and the leading half of the third. About two minutes later, the 5.22 p.m. 8-coach electric train from Holborn Viaduct to Dartford, which was moving slowly on to the bridge towards a signal at Red, was stopped very promptly by the motorman when he saw the girders at an angle; this train was neither derailed nor damaged, but the leading coach was tilted.

Owing to the disorganisation of the train services by the fog, both the trains were crowded, and it is estimated that there were nearly 1,500 passengers in the electric train and about 700 in the steam train. It was inevitable in these circumstances that the casualty list was very great, and I much regret to state that 90 persons altogether lost their lives; 88 passengers and the guard of the electric train were killed outright, and one passenger died later of his injuries. Of the 89 fatalities to passengers, there is evidence that 37 occurred in the electric train and 49 in the steam train." The report into the collision and subsequent bridge collapse at Lewisham which killed 90 people, and accelerated the introduction of the Automatic Warning System (AWS) to protect against such collisions.

Introduction

This collection contains probate records and deeds relating to the Mayow Adams family in Sydenham, Kensing and Crowdlesham, Kent. The Mayow Adams family owned a considerable amount of property in Sydenham in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. This large estate was first accumulated by Edward Hodsdon from 1713, and then from 1787 by the Mayow Wynell Mayow, then subsequently divided between his widow and their offspring. Between them, the Mayows owned most of the land between Sydenham Road and Perry Vale.

Note New Numbering.

Introduction
This collection contains letters patent of Frank Clarke Hill for improvements in gas manufacture.

Frank Clarke Hills took over the copperas works at Deptford [see A/75/27 for deed] that had closed in 1836. He had patented a process for purifying gas [See A/70/11 for patent] and made a fortune from it. It used a natural mineral which contained enough iron oxide that if porous would purify gas. Mines like Mone mine in Amlwich supplied a large amount of this mineral throughout the world. In 1840 he bought the tide mill and adjoining property that soap maker George Russell had built in East Greenwich. At this time he is referred to as an `industrial chemist' of Deptford. He developed chemicals based on gas industry waste products from which he made a large fortune and, with his brothers, owned works in Wales, Spain and elsewhere. He had also developed a steam car and patented an important piece of gearing. He went on to become a major London shipbuilder, perhaps involved with The Warrior.
